Kuntry Bowy is the voice of the Jamaican countryside with the work rate of a city hustler. He comes from Crownland, a small farming community in Trelawny, and he reps it in everything he does. Born Alborto Green, he writes his own songs, builds his own beats and runs his own imprint, From A Bag Ent, established in 2021.

Since December 2025 he has released more than twenty records across four labels: From A Bag Ent, Diphrent Music, System Boss Records and Claims Records. That pace built a catalogue most artists take years to reach and set the stage for his debut album, CrownLand, released on 10 August 2026.

Behind the artist is a working songwriter and producer. Alborto Green holds 166 recorded credits as lyricist, composer, producer, executive producer, arranger and engineer, working with more than forty collaborators. He does not wait for the industry to hand him a seat. He builds the table.

His music moves between two worlds. One side is hard, direct street dancehall with the edge of a clash artist. The other side is the man who writes about family, community and the children coming up behind him. CrownLand puts both on the same record, and that range is what makes him bookable for a dancehall session and a community stage in the same week.

THE ALBUM

CROWNLAND

CrownLand · Claims Records · 2026

CrownLand is named after home: Crownland, a small farming community in Trelawny. On his debut album, Kuntry Bowy puts his district on the map. The story continues on New Year's Day 2027 with “Celebrate With Me”, Part 2 of the title track.

SIDE ONE: THE CLAIM

The title track opens the gate. Smaddy Wea Mi Know, Gone A Lead, Teeth Pass Fowl and Gangster Love (123) carry the grit, loyalty and street code that made his name.

THE TURN

Empty Words runs as a two part story, closing on From The Other Side, the longest cut on the album.

SIDE TWO: THE VILLAGE

Stand Up Fi Mama, Guide Dem (Protect Di Likkle One Dem) with Simon Splinta and Village To Raise A Child bring it home to family and community before Peace And Love and When Dem Realise close the set.
